Subject: Update on Peace Dissemination Contract

Dear Sir,

I write with profound gratitude and appreciation for the progressive stewardship you have demonstrated in the information sector over the years. Your proactive leadership style has induced an upward shift in the media industry on many fronts and that has to be lauded by all and sundry.

In reference to the above subject matter, I wish to formally update you on the steps my company has taken in the execution of the contract on dissemination of the peace agreement since I received the first instalment in form of a cheque on 30/4/2021 to the tune of 75 Million South Sudanese Pounds.

In this respect, I have to unequivocally appreciate that the money came as a welcome relief for my company, which has been informing our viewers and listeners with less state support for the last decade of my revolutionary media entrepreneurship in South Sudan.

On the discharge of our contractual obligations, we have taken strides to put steps in place to sustainably meet our obligations. We are duty bound to ensure that our media creates lasting impact in the society and assists the government in the building and development of South Sudan.

Our selfless, unpaid productions at Fixing South Sudan Show for years attest to our ability to embark on our work whether there's finance or not. We are also fortunate to be well-endowed with equipment and vastly experienced team that put us above our competitors in being able to deliver on the contractual terms.

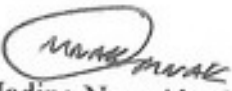

We initially began at the mobilisation stage, namely:

1. We assembled a critical team to ensure uninterrupted distribution of information on the peace agreement.
2. We hired a consultant to direct the productions of our programs as well as several cameramen and women.

3. We developed a state-of-the-art website to disseminate content digitally to the Diaspora
4. We equally identified suitable location to ensure productions within Juba are done in a studio rather than all over the place

In summary, we are now at the final stage of permanent realisation of our goals. We require infusion of the final instalment of payment to take the next leap forward. This involves renovation of studios for radio and TV as well as prepositioning of a Radio Station to ensure that our programs are multifaceted, far-reaching and sustainable.

Sincerely,

Mading Ngor Akech
